To the Class of 2007,

I have had the pleasure of seeing you through half of your high school career! It seems to me to that you are well on your way to becoming young adults who will make your lives interesting and productive adventures. The level of compassion and participation you have exhibited both within our school community and for the betterment of the world beyond our walls gives me great anticipation for what you will become. Years from now when you look back on what your years in high school meant to you, I sincerely hope you will remember the caring and support you received from your parents, teachers, counselors, coaches, advisors, and, yes, even school administrators as formative ingredients to what you will become. We who will remain behind will always remain your cheerleaders. We wish you all of the best as graduates of Wakefield High School!

Sincerely,

Letter from the Editor

To the Class of 2007:

A short four years ago we entered Wakefield Memorial High School for the first time. We walked through the hallways in an attempt to find our lockers, our classrooms, and a familiar face, all the while avoiding the senior class that seemed so much older and intimidating. This same senior class told us that our time here would fly by and that, before we knew it, it would all be over. We did not know it then, but they were right. Now, as a member of the graduating class, I find myself telling those freshmen who are lost in the hallways and causing traffic jams in Crash Corner, that their time here will also go by faster than they would like and that they should make the most of each moment.

On our graduation day, our families will wipe away tears as they watch us receive our diplomas. They will remember our first day of kindergarten, as we nervously piled onto the school bus in our new outfits and our backpacks that were too big for us and they will remember our final days of high school, when our backpacks had been shoved into the back of our cars and the anxiety of school had been replaced with the excitement of prom and graduation. They will be proud of us and will have faith in whatever it is we decide to do. Our friends will be seated beside us, reminiscing about the good times, in utter disbelief that it is all over. Our teachers and the faculty will be glad another school year is over, but undoubtedly they will be sad to see us go. There will be tears, but there will be laughter as our long talked about future becomes the present.

As a class we have grown from immature children, with no concept of time and life, into young adults with a motive to better ourselves. In the coming years, some of us will further our education in college, some will go off to serve our country, and others will go into the work force. As we take this leap from high school into the real world and travel down the roads we are meant to be on, let us always remember each other. It is my pleasure to give you this year book. Each page captures a moment in time, our moment in time, at Wakefield High School. I wish all of you the best, and I will never forget any of you. Dream Big!

Advisors to the Class of 2007

Dear Seniors,

As you leave Wakefield Memorial High School and enter a new chapter in your life remember to reflect upon the lessons you have learned and the experiences you have had during your time here. These lessons and experiences will prepare you for what is to come. You have all worked very hard and have the skills and abilities needed to be successful in any area you choose to pursue. As you embark on your journey remember these words:

"You are educated. Your certification is in your degree. You may think of it as the ticket to the good life. Let me ask you to think of an alternative. Think of it as your ticket to change the world." - Tom Brokaw

We wish you all best.

Julie,

*"You're an original.
You have your own special way of doing things,
expressing your needs,
looking at the world.
I've always loved that about you.
By being who you are,
you bring excitement to life.
You stand by your own values, view life from your own fresh perspective,
and invigorate
the people around you.
From the very first,
I've admired you,
enjoyed and been so proud of you.
And as the years go by,
my love for you
only grows deeper-
my honest, amazing, truly original daughter."*

Jason,

*"It seems like only yesterday that you were the little boy who loved to learn new things-the curious child who captured so much of my attention.
You needed me so much then... and you grew so close to my heart.
But as time went on, you grew more independent and more confident and I watched with mixed feelings of pride in your accomplishments and uncertainty of how the future would change our relationship.
How could I have known that as you grew older, I would grow to know you in a new way-to learn new things from you, and to see in you a man that brings more pride to me than words could ever say.
No matter
how much time passes, Son, I want you to know you will always be close to my heart." -Sharon Valleau*
